

DISTINGUISHED ALUMNUS
For Immediate Release

Salisbury Native Named as Charlotte College's 2007 Distinguished Alumnus

CHARLOTTE, N.C. - Timothy L. Ludwig has been named the 2007 Distinguished Alumnus of the Carolinas College of Health Sciences in Charlotte, NC

Tim honed his skills in numerous hospitals and outpatient facilities, mastering diverse imaging modalities, strong management skills and visionary leadership. Today he is director of all imaging services at Craven Regional Medical Center in New Bern, NC, which includes responsibility for all radiology areas: CT, MRI, ultrasound, nuclear medicine, angiography, diagnostic radiology, cardiac catheterization, radiation oncology, and a free-standing diagnostic center. This spring he earned the coveted AHRA Certified Radiology Administrator certification.

Ludwig graduated from CCHS in 1994 as a Radiologic Technologist and earned a BS from Pfeiffer University. He earned his master's degree in health administration from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Now he teaches healthcare management classes for Mt. Olive College as an adjunct professor in his spare time and recently accepted a seat on the Board of Directors of JRC/ERT, the organization which accredits imaging programs across the United States. This prestigious appointment represents the ultimate synthesis of professional practice with higher education.

Tim is a 1976 graduate of East Rowan High School and is the son of James and Nancy Ludwig of Rockwell. He resides in New Bern, NC with his wife Barbara and their daughter Taylor.

For more information on Carolinas College of Health Sciences visit www.carolinacollege.edu

